When to Take a Break

While it is very important to stay up-to-date on information regarding COVID-19, constantly monitoring news or social media can be exhausting and cause additional stress. Try and set regular times where you take a break from checking news or social media.

Good times to take a break from news.

During Meals

Family Time

Before Bed

Relieving Stress

Taking care of your body is an important step in relieving stress.
Below are some tips on how to practice self care every day.

Sleep

Keep a regular sleep schedule of 7-9 hours per night.

Drink Water

Avoid an excess of sugary or caffeinated drinks, especially before bed.

Fresh Air

Open a window, or go outside.

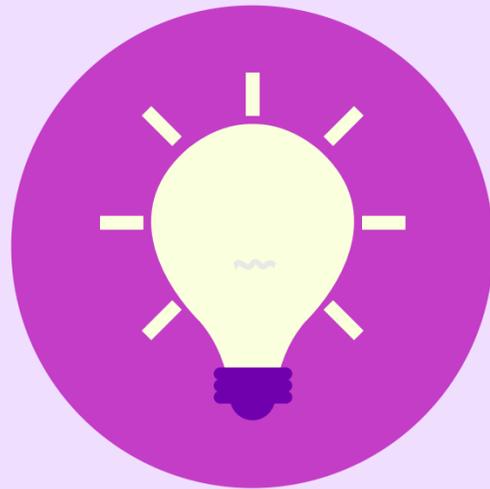

Get Moving

Stretch, go for a jog, dance, or exercise to your comfort level.

Relieving Stress

Take some time to connect with others and make sure that you have a healthy outlet for your emotions.

Create

Make something that you enjoy, a favorite meal, art, music, etc.

Connect

Call or text a friend and see how they are doing.

Play

Have some fun, break out the board games, or play with a pet.

Rock Out

Put on some music while doing your daily tasks.

Compassion Fatigue

Compassion fatigue is associated with caregiving professions and can occur during prolonged exposure to direct or indirect stressors.

Emotional Exhaustion

- Irritability
- Anxiety
- Depression
- Emotional detachment
- Feelings of isolation

Mental Exhaustion

- Feeling overwhelmed
- Trouble focusing
- Forgetfulness
- Lack of interest
- Lack of motivation

Physical Exhaustion

- Headaches
- Sleeping too little or too much
- Change in appetite
